Q1. Brand Concept Description *

In a couple of sentences, describe what your brand is about. Focus on the following:

Brand Identity: What are the key characteristics of your brand? (e.g., innovative, sustainable, luxurious, fun, minimalist, sporty, lively)

Brand Vision: What future do you hope to create with this brand?

Core Values: What values will guide your brand (e.g., eco-friendliness, customer-centricity, quality)?

This time, it is impossible that you still "don't know anything yet". If you are still debating several options, and cannot decide, you can list them here as well.

Brand Identity: Relatable, Interactive, and Expressive

Brand Vision: I'm creating an MBTI-themed brand that celebrates individuality while bringing together people of all personalities, lifestyles, and backgrounds through cute physical merchandised products. My vision is for my brand to transform personality theory into a shared experience, uniting enthusiasts under a common passion and creating a community-driven space (similar to CRM).

Core Values: Authentic & Theory-Based

Q1.1 How confident are you in your current brand concept and the direction you're heading? *

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
low confidence	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☒	☐	☐	high confidence

Q2. Target Customer Identification *

Who are your target customers? Define your audience as specifically as possible. For example, you could focus on demographic characteristics (age, location, income, etc.) and psychographics (lifestyle, interests, behavior).

Avoid broad categories like “GenZ.” Provide specific details, such as: “Female professionals aged 25-35 who are interested in eco-friendly fashion.”

Primary Audiences:

1 Young women (18-25) who are passionate about personality psychology and self-expression, seeking fun and engaging ways to connect with friends through MBTI-themed experiences. Ideally, they enjoy sharing, discussing, and bonding over personality insights - making them natural advocates for word-of-mouth marketing.

💡 Overall Focus: The brand appeals to individuals who love psychology, personality exploration, and self-expression - creating a community-driven experience through thoughtfully designed physical products that spark conversations and deepen connections.

Q2.1 How confident are you that you've correctly identified your target customer? *

Q2.2 (Optional)

Do you see a niche within your target market that you can serve? For example, targeting an intersection of interests (e.g., eco-conscious makeup enthusiasts, gamers, and fitness lovers).

*If you don't have a specific niche in mind, feel free to say "No idea".

Secondary Audiences:

2 Corporate Professionals & Team-Oriented Individuals – Young professionals and workplace teams who use personality frameworks for collaboration, self-awareness, and productivity, valuing stylish and functional MBTI-inspired office accessories and team-building tools.

3 Anime & Fandom Enthusiasts – Fans of anime, gaming, and internet culture who actively engage in personality discussions, MBTI character typing, and fandom-driven merchandise. They seek aesthetic, collectible, and shareable products that reflect their identity.

Q3. Platforms for Branding

What are the main platforms you plan to use for branding? Choose from content-based platforms (e.g., Instagram, TikTok) or commerce-based platforms (e.g., Etsy, Amazon, eBay).

*Feel free to list multiple platforms if you're planning to use more than one.

Content-Based Platforms: Instagram + TikTok (Active MBTI audience) Commerce-Based Platforms: Amazon + Ebay

Q3.3. Content Strategy (For Content-Based Platforms)

If you're planning to use content-based platforms (like Instagram or TikTok), what type of content do you want to create to drive traffic?

For example: 75% tutorials, 25% influencer interviews, 50% product reviews, 50% behind-the-scenes content. Or, if you're unsure, just say "No idea".

50% product reviews, 30% influencer reviews, 20% product knowledge

Q4. Product Offerings *

What are your product offerings? Be specific if you already have a clear idea (e.g., eco-friendly yoga mats, sustainable cosmetics). If you have a broad category in mind, just list the category (e.g., home decor, fashion accessories).

I am developing a MBTI-themed merchandise (e.g., plushies, apparel, and collectibles) while navigating the legal considerations surrounding MBTI trademarks and branding. Through research, I've found that MBTI has a highly engaged fanbase in the U.S., yet there is a noticeable lack of high-quality, personality-driven physical products available for consumers. This gap presents a unique opportunity to create tangible, aesthetically appealing, and shareable merchandise that resonates with MBTI enthusiasts!

Q4.1 How confident are you in the product offerings you've selected for your brand? *

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
Low confidence	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☒	☐	☐	High confidence

Q4.2 Why did you choose this product category? On a scale of 1-5, choose the influence on your decision.

You do not need to answer this if your product did not change from the previous survey.

	0: no influence	1: a little influence	2: some influence, but not a major factor	3: major influence on decision	4: decisive influence on decision

Q5. Evaluation of AI Feedback Impact *

Q5.1. To what extent do you feel that AI suggestions improved your overall brand concept (brand identity, target audience, product offerings, and platform strategy)?

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10

Q5.2 What aspects of using AI did you find most helpful in refining your brand concept? *

For example, how it helps you make decisions to improve the brand concept? Such as more choices to choose from, broader perspectives, inclusion of examples, help you visualize etc. Please use sentences to describe the process, not short phrases.

I believe AI has been incredibly helpful in expanding my thinking by considering multiple perspectives and potential untapped audiences. When you have a broad idea, AI can help narrow it down and provide more concrete support. However, since my idea was already well thought-out, I wanted to avoid broad questions. Instead, I focused on asking secondary questions that would lead to more specific and targeted answers, as I had originally intended.

I think that it is also helpful to take breaks - and come-back to AI when you have new perspectives in your idea. If you continue to insert prompts into AI for a consecutive period -that is when answers start to become obsolete.

Therefore, I believe that I knew this fact, and deliberately asked the AI very targeted questions - and re-adjusted it when it gave me questions that were off-track. I think it definitely helped me positively in refining my brand concept.

Q5.3 What challenges, if any, did you encounter when using AI to refine your brand ideas? *

Example: Did you feel that AI suggestions were too general, or did they provide the clarity you needed?

While AI models like (Chatgpt 4o and Chatgpt-4 Mini) can provide a wide variety of answers, this diversity can sometimes be overwhelming and confusing - especially when responses become saturated or inconsistent. This can make it difficult for users to find clear, specific answers.

For me, the key challenge is personalizing AI prompts to ensure that the responses are more tailored to my needs and context.

Q5.4 To what extent do you find my guiding/example prompts helpful? *

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
did not use at all	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☒	☐	☐	extremely useful

Post-Survey 2: On a scale of 1-5, how confident are you about creating a small personal brand on social media at the moment? *

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
low confident	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☒	☐	☐	very confident

Post-Survey 3: On a scale of 1-5, how confident are you about creating this brand all by yourself at the moment? (You can form groups if you want, I simply want to know how many of you want to work on this independently). *

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
low confidence	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☒	☐	very confidence
